Herald Want-Ad Gets Splendid Results for Hugh Long, Local Man

"You certainly produced the results," said Hugh Long, a local man who wanted a house, and who took the sensible means of getting one by advertising in the Herald. The first night he was called into the Herald office.

"I ran a four-line ad three times with you and I got all these chances, one of which was for just such a house as I wanted, and he had a thick sheet of replies on the counter. 'This business of advertising for what you want certainly beats waiting, our shoe leather hurting for it.'"

Long said he had waited out of his way to express his appreciation of the prompt results attained for him by a want ad.

Gardner, aged 15, a wealthy farmer of Manitou, Colo., and his wife, Mrs. Gardner, were killed and a daughter, Mrs. (Dorothy) Gardner, aged 20, was seriously injured in a collision between a passenger train and an automobile at Boulder.

St. Louis, Mo., June 15.—The Democratic committee of the Democratic convention, after about twenty-four hours of deliberation, finished its draft of a platform after a check policy and after a check policy and after a check policy.

Platform leaders expressed belief that approval of the platform would be given by the convention without much discussion.

A suffrage plank somewhat similar to that adopted by the Republican convention, endorsing the same, but leaving its adoption or rejection to the individual states, was adopted today, 23 to 20. A straight federal amendment proposal was put by a majority of two votes.

Will H. King of Oregon, and Representative Barker of California made the principal arguments for the suffrage plank, while Governor Stanley of Kentucky and Ferguson of Texas opposed them.

The Democratic platform opens with an endorsement of the Wilson administration, saying "It is the best exposition of sound Democratic policy."

It challenges comparison of "our record, our keeping of pledges and our constructive legislation" with any party in any time, and reviews legislation enacted.

It reaffirms belief in a tariff for revenue only and endorses the Underwood law, takes cognizance of the effect of war in the tariff and endorses a tariff commission.

The shipping bill is endorsed as a means of restoring "the American flag to the seas."

The "preparedness" plank summons all to "make clear to the world the unity and consequent power of America," and declares "This is an issue of patriotism. To treat it with partisanship would be to delude it."

It condemns every group of agitators who have as their object the subversion of the interest of a foreign power.

The "preparedness" plank favors the maintenance of an army fully adequate for the requirements of order, safety and protection of the nation's rights, for the fullest development of the coast defense, the maintenance of an adequate reserve of trained citizens and a fixed development of a navy "worthy to support the great naval traditions of the United States."

The platform declares for neutrality, holding that the administration has sought in the conduct of foreign affairs to support the principle of maintenance of national and individual rights, security in the high seas of the seas for the common and unhampered use of nations.

It declares for a government limited and the ultimate independence of the Philippines.

On suffrage it says: "We recommend the extension of franchise to the women of the country by the states upon the same terms as to men."

It demands the application of modern principles of urban reform to our federal capital system.

Foreign "economic" principles for soldiers and their widows.

It favors a comprehensive plan for irrigating our waterways and flood control work.

It favors territorial government for Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico.

"Unquestionably," endorses Woodrow Wilson and Thomas Riley Marshall, saying "Woodrow Wilson stands today the greatest American of his generation."

The platform concludes: "This is a critical hour in the history of America, a critical hour in the history of the world. Upon the record about set forth, which shows great constructive achievement in following out a consistent policy for our domestic and international development, on the record of the Democratic administration which has maintained the honor and dignity of the United States and at the same time retained the respect and friendship of all the nations of the world, and upon the enlargement of our national vision and the enlargement of our international relations as set forth above, we appeal to you."

Some of the planks of the platform follow:

Mexico.—The Monroe doctrine is reaffirmed as the principle of Democratic faith. That doctrine guarantees the independent republics of the two Americas against aggression from another continent. It implies as well the most scrupulous regard upon our part for the sovereignty of each of them. The want of a stable, responsible government in Mexico, capable of repressing and punishing marauders and bandit forces, who have not only taken the lives and seized the property of American citizens in that country, but have also murdered our men, made our women and children helpless, has rendered it necessary temporarily to occupy, by our armed forces, a portion of the territory of that friendly state. Until, by the restoration of law and order therein a rejection of such incursions is impracticable, the necessity for our remaining will continue. History on our side, as it does military success, is revolting to the people of the United States, notwithstanding the proclamation to that course has been great, and should be resorted to, if at all, only as a last resort. The stubborn resistance of the president and his advisers to every demand and suggestion to enter upon it is creditable alike to them and to the people in whose name he speaks.

Americanism.—The past that the United States will play in the new day of international relationships which is now upon us will depend upon our preparation and our character. The Democratic party therefore recognizes the assertion and triumphant demonstration of the interstate commerce commission for the purpose of investigating the conditions of the railroad industry and the conditions of the railroad industry.

The dispatch says that before evacuating the city the Austrian authorities arrested a number of persons who were forced to accompany the retreating troops. The railroad rolling stock was sent to Italy and the tracks about the city were destroyed. Thousands of wounded were dispatched to Bessarabia, 35 miles southwest of Czernowitz.

JAPANESE GUNS AIDING IN THE CAUCASUS DRIVE.—London, June 15, 11:25 a. m.—A dispatch to the Evening News from Petrograd says that much of the effectiveness of the Russian military in their great Caucasian drive is due to the use of Japanese guns. These guns are said to be more powerful than any that the Russians have had heretofore and are armed with shells loaded with a new explosive, the destructive power of which is terrific.

FOOD RIOTS REPEATED IN ROTTERDAM LAST NIGHT.—Amsterdam, June 15, via London.—A dispatch from the Associated Press from Rotterdam by telegraphers reports that food riots repeated last night, especially in the neighborhood of the town hall. There was some shooting and the police cleared the streets by charging the rioters.
